

A doctor with a passion for helping people.

Board-certified family practice physician Craig DeLisi believes that his role as a doctor is more than a title. "For me, medicine is a ministry. It's about getting to know people in their lives and getting to help them with their struggles. It's very fulfilling to have a chance to care for people in that way."

Dr. DeLisi received top grades while attending medical school, scored in the 99th percentile on his board exam and has completed numerous medical missions focusing on under-served inner city areas in the United States. Whether he's working on a mission or seeing a patient in his office, he maintains that same goal of treating each patient as an individual. "I treat people as people, not just focusing on the body, but also on the mind and the spirit."
